NOTES

1 States may choose either to determine the categorical Medicaid eligibility of their aged, blind, and disabled residents, or have the Social Security Administration (SSA) make these determinations for them. The "Medicaid Determination" column reflects the selected option.

The State has an agreement with SSA under section 1634 of the Social Security Act. SSA makes Medicaid eligibility determination for supplemental security income (SSI) recipients. (31 States and the District of Columbia)

The State makes its own Medicaid eligibility determination for SSI recipients using the SSI eligibility criteria. (7 States and the Northern Mariana Islands)

The State uses more restrictive criteria than those of the SSI program to determine Medicaid eligibility for SSI recipients. A State that selects this option is commonly referred to as a "209 (b) State". Section 209 (b) of Public Law 92-603 later became Section 1902 (f) of the Social Security Act. (12 States)

The Medicaid determination option is not applicable

2 The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA '90) authorized the selection of up to eight States to provide community-supported living arrangements (CSLA) services as an optional State plan service. The States selected to provide CSLA services are: California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Rhode Island, and Wisconsin.

3 Also as a Medicaid option, OBRA '90 allows for the provision of home and community care to functionally disabled, elderly individuals who are either medically needy or eligible for Medicaid due to receipt of SSI benefits. Texas and Rhode Island have implemented this option.
